TAFT-HARTLEY LABOR LAW BEING TESTED

Labor Party Hit

CHURCHILL SAYS BRITISH MUST OUST SOCIALISM

Conservative Leader Fires Bitter Blast At Present Regime

BRIGHTON, Eng., Oct. 4.—Winston Churchill condemned Britain's labor government today and urged his conservative followers to stand by for a new general election.

In a vigorous speech winding up the convention of conservative and unionist factions at Brighton, the war-time prime minister let go full blast against the Socialist regime.

He said: "The first step to national recovery is to get rid of these men."

CHURCHILL told his party adherents that the nation must be ready to cast its ballots at some future date against Socialism and what he termed a drift toward overpowering state control.

He said: "Because of the abnormal and unprecedented conditions prevailing in 1945 (when his coalition government was defeated in a general election), the government has no moral right to deny to the electorate free expression of their opinion at an early date."

Churchill sternly criticized Socialist mistakes and "incompetence."

But he added that the Conservatives steadily had supported Foreign Secretary Bevin in his conduct of foreign affairs, "especially in maintaining that close fraternal association with the United States upon which the peace and safety of the modern world depend."

THE CONSERVATIVE chief-tain charged that Prime Minister Attlee's regime is moving "toward a scheme of an all-powerful state in which the individual is a helpless serf or pawn."

"The scheme of society for which we stand is establishment and maintenance of a basic minimum standard of life and labor, below which a man or woman of good will, however old or weak, shall not be allowed to fall."

"Once this basic standard is established we shall liberate the energies, genius and contrivance of the British nation from the paralyzing and humiliating thralldom into which it is now plunged."

At the final session, the conservatives ordered their executive committee to wage war on Communism in England.

Speakers laid Britain's economic crisis partly on the shoulders of Communist agents.

RUBBER PLANT WALKOUT TESTS NEW LABOR LAW

AKRON, O., Oct. 4.—Another test of the Taft-Hartley law was in the making today at the Seabering Rubber Company in nearby Barberton.

Some 210 workers in the passenger and small truck tire departments began a sit-down strike yesterday in protest against a new wage rate. Union officials termed the strike unauthorized.

More than 500 other employees in the plant were affected by the sit-down strike, which, observers said, was a test of the Taft-Hartley law's no-walkout provision.

$750,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Jewelry with an estimated value of $750,000 was reported stolen today from the sixth floor west 83rd street penthouse of Mrs. Sari Gabor Hilton, former Hungarian actress, just off Fifth avenue.

Beer Manufacturers Asked To Join Whiskey Makers In Saving Grain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—President Truman's food conservation committee today seeks the support of the beer-making industry to back up a pledge by distillers to cut down on the use of grain in producing whiskey.

Charles Luckman, chairman of the citizens food committee, meets with representatives of the brewing industry to consider its participation in plans to provide additional relief for hungry European nations.

Luckman revealed that the Distilled Spirits Institute, representing 60 per cent of the whiskey industry favors "immediate elimination" of wheat and a 50 per cent slash in all other grains used in liquor-making.

LUCKMAN'S announcement, however, precipitated an argument between two segments of the whiskey industry over what measures should be taken by distillers to save grain.

Publicker Industries, of Philadelphia, a large group of distillers outside the institute, labeled the pledge of Luckman "inadequate" and recommended that the entire industry shut down for the duration of the food emergency.

The pledge of cooperation by the distilling industry was considered the first important step

CLUES LACKING IN BOMB DEATH

Former Democratic Leader In Tennessee Killed In 'Booby Trapped' Auto

ETOWAH, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Authorities pinned their hopes on a few fragments of detonator wire and federal bureau of investigation expert today to help them solve the booby trap murder of T. B. (Burkett) Ivins, ousted Democratic leader.

The prominent, 62-year-old politician of McMinn county and descendant of an East Tennessee pioneer family, was fatally injured when a blast was touched off as he stepped on the starter of his automobile in a garage at his Etowah home.

SHERIFF Knox Henry, a leader of the so-called "GI faction" which won political power in McMinn county by upsetting the long-entrenched Democratic machine in the primary election of August, 1946, announced he had "no suspects."

The sheriff added that, except for the wires found attached to the car's ignition system, "we have no evidence but a body and an almost demolished automobile."

At the time of his death Ivins was under $15,000 bond awaiting trial next Tuesday on a charge of the murder of Charles Dunn, an Etowah street last April.

Dunn was the son of one of Ivins' longtime political associates. He was shot down shortly after he had supported the man who defeated Ivins for Democratic county chairman.

SIX-CENT ROBBERY PUTS YOUTH IN REFORMATORY

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 4.—A burglary that netted him just six cents landed 19-year-old Samuel Johnson, Jr., in the Mansfield reformatory today.

Johnson was sentenced after he pleaded guilty to entering the office of the Galle Lumber company through a window and stealing a purse containing six cents. He previously served a workhouse term for receiving stolen goods.

forward in the campaign to make an additional 100 million bushels of grain available for near-starvation countries of western Europe.

The food conservation program for the American people gets underway tomorrow night with a nationwide broadcast by President Truman, Secretary of State Marshall and Luckman. Their talks will be carried by all major radio networks, starting at 10:30 p. m. EST, Sunday.

THREE JAILED FOR LARCENY

Columbus Men Accused Of Taking Steam Radiators From Dwelling

Three Columbus men were in the Pickaway county jail in Circleville, Saturday afternoon, each accused of grand larceny in the theft of 4,260 pounds of steam radiators from an unoccupied Madison township dwelling owned by Wayne Brown.

The prisoners were: Clyde Carter, 20, Elmer Stout, Jr., 21, and Thomas Bowen, 64. All live at 619 South Pearl street, Columbus, and Bowen is Carter's stepfather.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the radiators were stolen Thursday and that Carter and Stout were taken into custody at the scene of the theft. Friday afternoon, by Sheriff Radcliff and Deputy Vern L. Pontious. Bowen was taken into custody late Friday night by the Franklin county sheriffs department at the request of Sheriff Radcliff and he was transferred from the Franklin county jail to Circleville, Saturday, by Deputies Pontious and Carl Radcliff.

SALE OF the stolen radiators to a junk yard in Columbus for $53.25 by Carter and Stout led to the arrests, Sheriff Radcliff explained. The license number of their truck was noted by the junk man who later divulged the number to authorities. When Carter and Stout returned to the junk yard, Friday, with another load of metal, they were told that law-enforcement officers had been there to inquire concerning them.

Carter and Stout drove to the Brown house where they were nabbed. The sheriff quoted them as declaring they did not steal the radiators but instead bought the metal for $5 from "a man who was sitting on a fence and who had white whiskers."

COLUMBUS ASKS CAB REHEARING ON AIR SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The city of Columbus, Ohio, and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce today had filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board a motion for reconsideration of the board's decision denying the city a north-south trunk line air service.

The petitioners contended that in its decision on the "Great Lakes to Florida service" case, made Sept. 3, the CAB showed "total disregard" for the public convenience of 1,635,000 people in Central Ohio.

Further, the request for a rehearing asserted: "The board completely overlooks the needs for a trunk line to the south and north through central Ohio and the city of Columbus. How many years must go by before this gross inadequacy of air service for central Ohio is corrected?"

Bodies Of 5,600 Americans On Way Home From Battle Fields

ANTWERP, Belgium, Oct. 4.—The vanguard of America's European war dead began their solemn journey home today, and liberated peoples joined Americans in many parts of Europe in offering silent homage.

The bodies of 5,600 soldiers who sacrificed the lives they loved for the cause of freedom were on a transport in Antwerp harbor, ready for the long-awaited return to their homeland.

United States and Belgium officials and dignitaries of other allied nations bade a grateful farewell before the departure of the flower-banked vessel from the ancient Belgian port.

OVERELL JURY SENT TO BED AFTER 6 HOURS

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 4.—Weary from almost six hours of fruitless deliberation, the Overell yacht murder trial jury was sent to bed early today with no indication how soon it will reach a verdict.

The final hour before midnight was enlivened when the two young defendants were brought into a packed court room while the jury asked Superior Judge Kenneth Morrison about the testimony of an Orange county medical officer.

Beulah Louise Overell, accused of participating in the murders of her wealthy parents, the Walter E. Overells, appeared haggard and on the verge of another collapse during the unexpected court session.

George "Bud" Gollum, her sweetheart accused with her of the crime, was as nonchalant and outspoken of their ultimate acquittal as usual during the brief respite from a jail cell where he had been playing chess while the jury deliberated.

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—Austrian police sought today to uncover a monarchist underground believed responsible for a terror campaign against the Communist party in Styria.

Shea Seeking Second Win In World Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The debacle was ended but the fervor lingered on today as wacky, screw-lucid Brooklyn wiped the froth off its jowl and went roistering out anew to greet a World Series gone suddenly loco.

It came to the full meaning of that violent and maudlin state in the gloaming of yesterday's fantastic ninth-inning finish, a thing without parallel in all the vivid lore of baseball's revered championship.

Briefly, it saw the Dodgers beat Floyd Bevens out of a record no-hitter and the Yankees out of the ball game, 3-2, with one ultrasensational gesture whose memory must remain imperishable.

IT WAS pinch hitter Harry "Cookie" Lavagetto who, with two out in the ninth and Bevens at the doorway of immortality, seared the paint on the right field wall with a double, scoring the tying and winning runs.

One more out, and Bevens would have been the first in World Series history to pitch a no-hit game.

One more out, in fact, and the Yankees would have taken the victory for a well nigh unassailable 3 to 1 lead in the series. But fate and Harry Lavagetto decreed other wise.

THE SERIES, in consequence, went forward to its fifth game today with the principals stalemated at two-all in victories and the populace of that strange borderland beyond the

'SAFETY FIRST' BACKFIRES AND INJURES DRIVER

RAVENNA, O., Oct. 4.—Carl Randall, 46, of Canton, just can't win when it comes to hitchhikers.

Randall carries a pistol in his car to protect himself against any "bad" hitchhikers he may pick up in his travels. Yesterday the precaution backfired.

Randall picked up a rider a few miles out of Ravenna. Ever careful, Randall placed the pistol, still in its belt, by his side, in case the rider should turn out to be a robber. He was shot in the abdomen when the pistol fell out of the belt.

Randall drove the remaining 15 miles to Canton's Aultman Hospital for first aid. The hitchhiker was left behind at a filling station where he had gone to seek medical aid. Randall was reported in good condition today.

DISPUTES OVER WAGES, RULES MARK PICTURE

Troops May Be Used In Bus Strike; Walkouts End In Some Areas

By International News Service

Taft-Hartley law provisions against secondary boycotts, "feather-bedding," unfair union labor practices, and refusal to bargain with employers were being tested in a number of labor disputes today.

Mississippi National Guardsmen prepared to board buses of Southern Trailways at a "moment's notice" as Governor Wright sought to halt a wave of violence in the four-month walk-out.

Bread production in New Orleans was expected to drop to half of normal today because of a strike of AFL bakery and confectionery workers.

Eight hundred strikers were expected to return to work at the B. F. Goodrich plant at Tuscaloosa, Ala., pending negotiation of a new contract.

In Albany, N. Y., striking longshoremen went back to work less than 24 hours after the NLRB got a temporary injunction forbidding secondary boycotts. There were indications the AFL International Longshoremen's association would use the case for a test of the Taft-Hartley measure's constitutionality.

Retail stores in southern Illinois reopened after a two-day walkout of AFL clerks. Raises of $4 to $5 a week were granted in Herrin, Venice, Madison, Granite City, Mitchell and Nameoki.

In New York City, Mayor William O'Dwyer's special citizens' mediation panel predicted a settlement soon of the dispute at 150 Safeway stores which were closed when the union refused to promise to give seven days' warning of intent to strike.

The California state supreme court declared the 1941 "hot cargo" law unconstitutional and a court spokesman predicted the 1947 permanent hot cargo act, continuing the wartime measure, also would be ruled out.

In Ft. Wayne, Ind., every member of the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters local signed non-Communist affidavits.

The AFL convention at San Francisco next week is expected to have a hot fight over refusal of committee member John L. Lewis to sign.

A possible settlement of the American overseas airline pilots' strike next Monday was seen when the national mediation board said it would meet that day with the disputing parties.

'CRAZY' SERIES EVEN UP FOR TODAY'S GAME

'Bums' Refuse To Give Up As They Deadlock
Series Two All

By LAWTON CARVER
NEW YORK, Oct. 4—The New York Yankees are slightly embarrassed today by a ball club which probably has never been surpassed for mediocrity.

The Brooklyn Dodgers themselves are the only ones who failed to recognize the apparent fact that they must lose.

This is the damndest World Series in all history. Add it up, and the best you can get is a straightjacket at Bellevue.

The main drawback to this World Series of 1947 unfolding itself in customary class and skill is that the Yankees are just good, and the Dodgers are terrible.

YET, AS OF today, the wretched, unwanted Bums from across the river, have the series deadlocked with the Yankees at two games apiece. This is not a paradox. It is an outrage.

THUS, the World Series actually starts this afternoon. The winner of two of the next three takes it all.

That game yesterday was in keeping with the Brooklyn pattern of making sure that everything is topsy-turvy.

That utterly unbelievable victory which tied the series at two-all was strictly from Flatbush. There is no telling, although it happens from here on, what one may expect.

Actually, the Dodgers are not good enough to whip the Yankees. But they have done it the last two games in a row. It could happen only in Brooklyn.

That 3 to 2 victory which the Dodgers scored yesterday when a bench warmer named Cookie Lavagetto hit a pinch double in the ninth inning might very well be the World Series.

HOWEVER, it is important to point out that if possible the Dodgers are harder pressed for pitchers than the Yankees. As a matter of fact, the series is being won or lost on what must be the worst pitching ever seen in this so-called classic.

In this series only Bill Bevens, who pitched for the Yanks yesterday, and Allie Reynolds, Cleveland castoff now with the Yankees, have finished games they started. The Dodgers are using everybody in sight, including innocent bystanders. But Reynolds still may not be the pitching star of this series.

Hugh Casey, the old reliever, pitched only one ball yesterday and was credited with his second win in two days. From the way the Dodger pitchers have been going he is likely to wind up winning three or four games.

TIGERS SCORE 4TH STRAIGHT VICTORY BEFORE BIG CROWD

Cutting loose with a three-touchdown barrage in the second quarter Circleville high school Tigers scored their fourth straight victory of the 1947 football season Friday night before a large home crowd.

Harold Hill scored two touchdowns and pitched two scoring passes as the Tigers romped over Washington township (Scioto county) by a 27-7 score. Bob "Moe" Shaw place-kicked three straight extra points after his first attempt was blocked.

Another touchdown was called back when the officials claimed Jack Young stepped out of bounds late in the game and a penalty nullified another.

Lone visitors' score came in the fourth quarter when second and third stringers were in the contest for CHS.

A LARGE Mothers' Night crowd saw a slow first quarter when the Tigers made only 27 yards and the visitors 10.

The second quarter, however, was jammed full of action by the Tigers. Taking over on their own 39-yard line the Tigers quickly struck for the first score, then kept up the suddenly found habit.

On the second play of the second period Hill battered forward for three yards. Then Dave Crawford fired a pass to Carl Radcliff and "Caudy" was finally stopped on the 15. Crawford picked up a yard then Hill used his interference beautifully on a run around his own right end and went the 14 yards needed for a score. Shaw's attempt at placement was blocked.

AFTER THE kickoff the visitors made a minus seven yards in two tries and punted. Taking over on their own 43 the Tigers made a first down, then bogged down and Hill punted out of bounds on the Washington 19. Again the visitors lost yardage and were forced to punt. Crawford returned the kick to the Washington 32.

On the first play Hill sprinted 32 yards to score the second touchdown. This time the CHS line held and Shaw sent the ball squarely between the uprights to make the score 13-0.

The visitors elected to pass on the first play after the kickoff and Hill intercepted the ball. He galloped over the goal line but one of his teammates was caught clipping on the 10-yard line and the Tigers were penalized back to the 25.

Three plays later they scored. Crawford made five yards, then Ferguson batted the line for a first down. Hill pitched another strike to Carl Radcliff and this time he went over to score. Shaw's kick was nearly perfect and the score was 20-0 as time ran out at the half.

THE SECOND half started slow with Washington losing four yards, Circleville 7, the visitors making 13.

Then came the longest touchdown march of the evening.

Starting from their own 25 the Tigers used six plays to score. Hill got loose on the first play for 29 yards. Crawford was stopped, then made 7. A pass failed and again the Tigers shook Hill loose and he went for 25 yards. On the next play he tossed a pass to "Skeets" Smallwood for a touchdown. Shaw made the score 27-0.

The Washington score came on a 48-yard march, mostly by air.

Taking over after Ferguson got off a short kick, the visitors made six yards on the ground before a pass from Bill Damron to "Zig" Eneller was good for 40 yards with "Dixie" Harris stopping him on the four-yard line. Gilmore batted the line for a yard. Damron was stopped. A pass was passed to Eneller for the score. Carl Wessell kicked the extra point.

THE TIGERS came roaring back with John Valentine galloping 26 yards on the first play after the kickoff. A 15 yard penalty for unnecessary roughness gave the Tigers another first down. Valentine drove inside the visitors' 30 but on the next play they intercepted a pass.

The Scioto countians cut loose with four passes which made a total of 4 yards and the Tigers took over on the Washington 34. Valentine passed to Young who went all the way to score but the officials said he stepped out of bounds. Observers claimed he was two feet away from the sidelines at the point he was supposed to have stepped out. A pass fell short, then Bob Gilkerson intercepted one. Time ran out after the visitors had made two first downs on passes.

Next week the Tigers play a veteran Newcomerstown team here.

BEFORE THE game the Tigers rested and ate at the Country Club. They went directly from school to the club and came from there to the game. Coaches and other school officials voiced their appreciation to the Booster Club which made it possible. The club plans to send the team to the Country Club before every home game.

MOST OF the crowd almost refused to believe it when big, rough-tough "Chuck" Sabine did not get up after one play. "That can't be Sabine down on the ground" echoed through the stands while Coach Steve Brudinski worked on him "Sabe" got a big hand when he got up and rejoined his teammates.

"Skeet" Smallwood got the wind knocked out of himself in the first quarter. He rushed in to make a tackle while a teammate was making and both the Washington and Circleville player crashed head-on into "Skeet." Smallwood came back to play some good ball after that.

CIRCLEVILLE uncovered a place kicker for the first time this season. Bob Shaw used to specialize in drop kicks but the coaches now have him using that left foot to boot the ball from placement. He did a good job Friday night, making three of four. The other might have been good but the CHS line let the whole Washington team through to block the attempt.

Bleachers from the fairgrounds, added to school bleachers made plenty of seating capacity. About 200 people stood up at the west end of the field while bleachers down toward the east end remained almost empty.

Ed Amey and John Heiskell handled the PA system with the help of Harold Stonerock and Lloyd Brintlinger who kept the ball located by the telephone system. Coaches Steve and Tommy exchanged ideas between the pressbox and bench with Tommy watching from up in the air.

As sometimes happens at the most important times, the PA system "konked out" when time came to introduce the mothers. Heiskell did it without the mike and a few minutes after the ceremony was over, the system was back in working order.

LONGEST WIN STREAK

COLLEGE PARK, MD., Oct. 4—The University of Delaware's string of 32 consecutive football victories—the longest in the nation—finally has been broken.

The University of Maryland turned the trick last night before 17,000 fans in Byrd Stadium at College Park by walloping the Blue Hens, 43 to 19.

BUCKEYES FACE PURDUE IN BIG NINE CONTEST

LA FAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 4—Ohio State opened its Western Conference season today at Lafayette against an underdog Purdue eleven.

A near capacity crowd of 35,000 was expected in Purdue's Ross-Ade Stadium. The game marked Ohio's first appearance there since 1923.

The contest brought together two former Ohio State teammates as rival head coaches. Both Wes Fesler of the Bucks and Stu Holcomb of Purdue are beginning their initial season as Western Conference mentors.

Ohio State won its first game last Saturday when it scored the winning touchdown within the last three minutes to defeat Missouri, 13 to 7. Purdue lost its opener to Wisconsin, 32 to 14.

Most observers expected the Bucks to have little trouble with the Boilermakers. Purdue's chief threat was quarterback Bob DeMoss, one of the nation's sharpest passers.

DeMoss had some first rate receivers in ends Bob Heck, Norman Maloney and Clyde Grimsen.

Ohio was handicapped somewhat by a series of backfield injuries that depleted the ranks of its halfbacks. Fesler had Bob Demmel and Rod Swinehart definitely out of action, and he expected to use Bob Brugge only in extreme emergency.

OHIO FARMERS' INCOME HIGHER, EXPENSES UP TOO

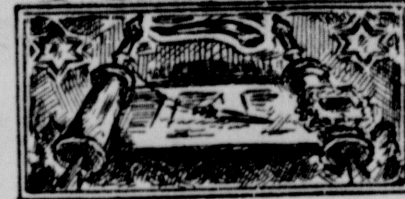

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4—The Ohio farmer's net income for 1947 is expected to be eight to ten per cent above last year's figure.

That was the estimate made today by Guy W. Miller, extension economist with the U. S. department of agriculture extension service at Ohio State University.

Miller pointed out, however, that whereas the farmer's cash income would be greater, his grain inventory would be less at the end of the year. He explained that production of oats and corn was expected to be below the 1946 level and as a result

Members and friends of the First Evangelical United Brethren church, East Main street, will join other Christians around the globe in celebration of World-Wide Communion Sunday October 5 at 10:30 a. m. An appropriate worship center symbolic of the occasion has been erected. The pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, will serve as celebrant following an original order of worship. Opening the service, Miss Lucille Kirkwood will play the organ prelude, "Meditation Religieuse" by W. Schults. Preceding the offering, a set of "Sudbury" brass model offering plates, a gift to the church, will be dedicated. "Pass Me Not" by Doane is the organ offertory response to the prayer of blessing. The Pastoral meditation theme is "The Fellowship of Communion." Charles Kirkpatrick, choir-master, will sing the Communion solo, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," by Geoffrey O'Hara. The Rev. Mr. Wilson says concerning the attendance at this service, "Since the Evangelical United Brethren church is liberal in its opinion of Holy Communion, if there be other Christians, who have not a church home in our community, they are sincerely invited to join us in our World-Wide Communion celebration."

Antidus, bishop of Jaen, was martyred by the Vandals in 411 A. D. One day Antidus detected the devil writing in his pocket-book an accusation against the Pope. He leaped on the fiend's back and forced him to carry him through the air to Rome, where he arrived all covered with Alpine snow. The hat is still shown at Rome in confirmation of this miracle.

The Better Revelation

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 5 is Hebrews 1-2; 8:6-13; Matthew 3:16-17; John 14:5-11, the Memory Verse being Psalm 122:1, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of Jehovah.")

TODAY we start a new series of lessons taken from the letters of early church leaders. The one for today commences with two chapters from the Epistle of Paul to the Hebrews, concerning the revelation of God regarding His Son, Jesus. It begins: "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, Hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, whom He hath appointed heir to all things, by whom also He made the worlds; Who being the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His person, and upholding all things by the word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high." All through the Old Testament narratives God spoke through the prophets, who, in turn, translated His words to the Hebrew people. In the New Testament He speaks through Jesus, His Son and representative on earth. Jesus brought God very near to us. He called Him "Our Father," as well as "My Father," assuring us that we could take our problems directly to Him and He would hear and help us. God's Words Concerning Jesus. As to the revelation concerning Jesus, Paul tells us: "For unto which of the angels said He at any time, Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to Me a Son? ... Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows." These passages we should keep in our hearts. Paul writes: "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." There is no need to comment on this verse. Heedless little children who "forget" what Father and Mother tell them, or what their day or Sunday School teachers say, are matched by we older ones who forget too, and must remind ourselves again and again about our moral and spiritual lives. Now we come to the New Covenant which Paul sets forth in the 8th chapter of his epistle to the Hebrews.

'RALLY DAY' TO BE OBSERVED AT CALVARY EUB

Sunday will mark the observance at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church of "Rally Day" and World-Wide Communion. Special goals have been set for each of the classes of the church school and the school as a whole, and each class is striving to meet that goal. The Rally Day program in the Sunday School will be followed by the communion service in the morning worship service. The communion meditation which the pastor will bring is entitled "The Communion Table." A special offering will be taken in the morning service which will go toward the "Kingdom Advance Program" of the church and will be used to buy food for the relief program of our church in Europe and Asia. At the evening service the pastor will bring the message entitled "Wit's-end Praying." This message is based upon the text taken from Psalm 107:27-28.

COMMUNION TO BE OBSERVED BY METHODISTS

Dr. Elisha Kneisley will give a brief communion meditation followed by administration of Holy Communion at the 10:30 a. m. worship service in the First Methodist church Sunday. Offering for world suffering will be taken. One half of the offering will be administered through the Methodist committee on overseas relief; one fourth to the Methodist commission on chaplains; one fourth through the commission on camp activities. Mrs. Ervin Leist will play "Aria" from Handel's Rinaldo for the prelude and "Postlude" by Rinck at the close of the service. The vested choir will sing the anthem "Bread of the World" by Beatty. Miss Jean Heine will sing "God is a Spirit" as the offertory solo.

My precept to all who build is, that the owner should be an ornament to the house, and not the house to the owner. —(Cicero)

In My Father's House Are Many Mansions

The Riverside Church, New York City, was an outgrowth of the Park Avenue Baptist Church. It was built to enable the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick to practice his ideals of "non-partisan" religion. The gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., its tower houses the largest carillon in the world, with 72 bells. The carillon was first tried in the Park Avenue church, but the sounds were too loud and reverberated from other nearby tall stone structures. The Riverside Church was constructed with this in mind, so as to eliminate the interruption of the tones of the carillon. Here the bells may peal out over the Hudson River with nothing to obstruct their lovely call to worship.

This great House of God follows the lines of the 13th century French Gothic style of architecture in general, and those of the Cathedral at Chartres, in particular. Begun in 1925, The Riverside Church was formally opened in 1930. It is one of America's great religious shrines, built to glorify the mighty God. All of us cannot attend such magnificent houses of worship, but within our own smaller churches are the "many mansions" which Christ said there were in His Father's house. God is present wherever men assemble to worship Him. He is within your own church. His Kingdom is also within you. Surrender yourself to His will. Copyright 1947 by Dan Kavanaugh, Harrisonburg, Va.

"The Attracting Power Of The Cross" is the subject chosen by the Rev. Donald Mitchell, for the Communion Meditation Sunday morning at the 10:30 service of worship in the Presbyterian church. In the afternoon, the Young Peoples Westminster Fellowship will rally at an out door meeting according to a well planned schedule. They will gather at the church at 4:45 and leave together for their rendezvous. On Monday the Rev. Mr. Mitchell will leave to attend a four day "New Life" training school at Cincinnati in preparation for the launching of the "New Life" movement throughout the church. He will return Friday morning. Excerpt from Teaching of the BAHAI FAITH

"The Revelation of Baha'u'llah does not deal alone with pure religion. It is concerned with more than man's soul-attitude towards God and God's creation. It is a social, as well as a spiritual, gospel. It involves indeed a reorientation of many phases of life, and it offers counsel and direction along many lines of endeavor."

HIGH SCHOOL DRIVERS

AS PART of the campaign for traffic safety, many high schools throughout the country are introducing classes in which boys and girls are to receive instruction in driving automobiles. There has been much talk against teen-age drivers on the basis that a large accident percentage is attributable to them. The new approach is to accept the fact that boys and girls are going to drive and that they should be given instruction in the proper technique of operating cars.

Safety experts claim that the major causes of accidents with youthful drivers at the wheel are: speeding, due to excessive youthful energy and desire for thrills; inability to resist attractions outside and inside the cars, and an adolescent tendency to "show off," which results in carelessness.

Utilizing such knowledge, the training courses were opened. According to safety officials, surveys show that persons graduated from such classes meet with half the accidents encountered by boys and girls who have not had the instruction.

The project and its results provide a convincing argument for making driving classes required study in high schools.

SHIFTING THE BLAME

"TWISTING the lion's tail" used to be a popular subject for congressional speeches. This meant attacking and defying Great Britain at the safe distance of some 3,000 miles. Its purpose was to appeal to anti-British prejudices among our voters and thereby cover up deficiencies in the orator's own record. In late years this practice has largely died out.

Something like this may explain Russian outbursts, such as Vishinsky's, in which the United States was held up as a world menace. Received with little favor in the security council, it was obviously made for home consumption. The war damaged Russia tremendously and it will take years to rectify the damage. People do not always appreciate the reasons for delay and are apt to take it out in dissatisfaction with the government. This discontent may sometimes be diverted against an outside power like the United States.

The anti-British speeches of our congressmen actually meant very little. If the Soviets meant war they probably would not display their animosity so openly.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE.... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up, out and about the village at the usual hour and on a beautiful Autumn morn. Much activity and everyone as smile except W. G. Koch, the federal tomato inspector. He is just back from Auglaize and Mercer counties where he saw thousands of tons of tomatoes destroyed by frost. Told of one peculiar incident. Corn frozen on one side of a road, tomato plants untouched on the other side of the road. No explanation of his own, heard none. Just a freak of nature.

And not only tomatoes frozen. Earlier in the week did receive a card from the Mac Noggles who were "on one of those trips—once in a lifetime—attending the American Rose Society Fall meeting" at Williamsburg, Va. Saw him this day and he told how they were driven out of the sunny South by cold. Mac even had his swimming suit along. But being a banker and believing in being prepared for any emergency, he also had an overcoat. Wore the coat all the time.

There goes Ed Keys, who started work with the Norfolk and Western 40 years ago and

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The American press is about to celebrate newspaper week, which comes annually at this time of the year. There are many special weeks during the year, most of which are to advertise a commodity or to support a cause and most of them pass without much attention. They do not really matter.

Newspaper week, this year, is different. It highlights, among the most important and critical problems that face the human race, freedom of communications, freedom of the transmission of facts and ideas, freedom to criticize, to doubt, to praise. The American newspaper is unfortunately becoming a unique institution in the western world. There was a time when all newspapers nearly everywhere were more or less free to function as their publishers and editors chose. In most countries, newspapers, magazines, the radio have become organs of government and party propaganda. The truth is not in them. They repeat what government orders them to repeat. They do not check the facts; they do not publish differences of opinion or of presentation; they do not scrutinize or criticize those who govern. They have ceased to be publications for the people; they are organs of deceits and infamy.

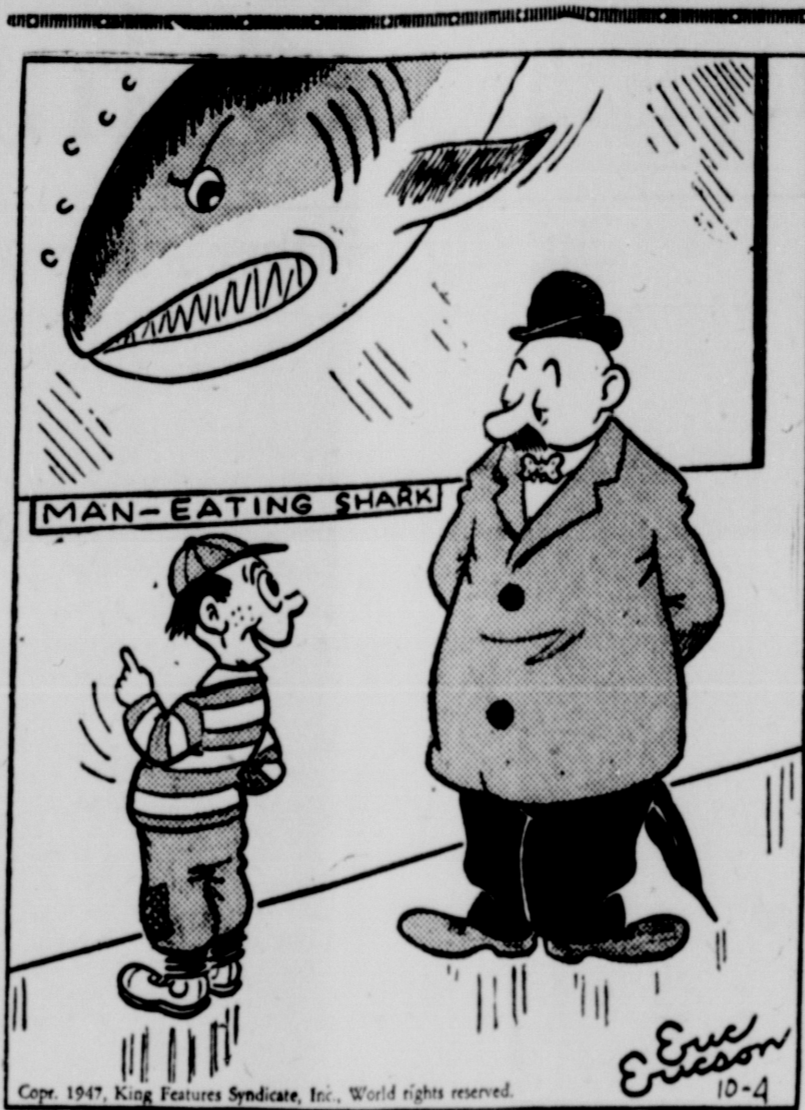

Our press remains free. Private ownership, even in cities where there is only one newspaper, avoids forcing a particular view or a particular recounting of a situation. In fact, it would be technically impossible for a newspaper publisher to keep from his readers facts of situations which do not suit him. Three great news agencies, remote and uncontrolled by local publishers, send through their copy speedily and objectively. Even were these news agencies to unite to deceive, they would fail. The large metropolitan dailies and weeklies maintain large staffs of correspondents within the United States and abroad and they usually do more than supplement the news services; they seek for a keener scrutiny, a sharper criticism than the news agencies care to provide. And weekly publications supplement these with independent reporting.

Besides, there is a huge corps of Washington correspondents, each ambitious to make that one great scoop that will bring fame and reputation. And there are the columnists. They are a curious lot, it is true, but they are set apart, with more freedom than any writers have ever known anywhere on earth, to delve for the truth. Some are disliked for their style; others, for the subjects they select. Some build large personal followings. Some risk their reputations for probity by sharpness of language. But taken all together, they are avenues for the presentation of differences; they are vehicles for bringing to the surface what might otherwise be obscure. They ferret out the hidden.

The cumulative effect of all this activity is that the American people are better served by its press than other peoples and although some newspapers may be slanted propagandistically and some writers may be serving special causes, altogether the press produces a fullness of presentation, a completeness of information, an inevitable uncovering of the truth. That is what freedom of the press means and requires.

If a Doctor Advises Tetanus Injections, Take His Advice

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MOTHERS are sometimes puzzled, and even a little annoyed, when the doctor insists that the child who has stepped on a nail or received some trifling scratch must immediately be given a shot of something which will almost surely make him at least a little sick, and not infrequently quite sick.

The injury seems so small, the inconvenience so great, that they are inclined to feel the physician is making too much fuss about nothing. But doctors know what mothers sometimes do not—the horrors of the grave disease called tetanus, or lockjaw, and that it can be ward off by timely injections of tetanus antitoxin. But these must be given early enough.

Tetanus Germs

The germs which cause tetanus live in soil. They cannot survive in the presence of oxygen. Hence, as a rule, tetanus develops from wounds which go deep into the tissues, such as puncture wounds from dirty nails or those made by an animal's tearing claws, or following burns.

The tetanus germs work on the nervous system, causing spasm of the muscles and even convulsions. Spasm is particularly severe in the jaw muscles which become locked and rigid. It is from this spasm of the jaw muscles that the disease gets its popular name of lockjaw.

In former years, almost one-half of the patients who contracted the disease died. Early treatment has improved so much recently that the number of deaths has been cut to about one-fourth, but, even if the patient lives, he has still undergone a frightful ordeal.

When It Develops

Tetanus may develop anywhere from a few days to a month or more after the injury occurs. Usually, the shorter the period before the disease develops, the more seriously ill the patient. It is significant that many patients can recall no injury through which the infection might have got into the body. This indicates not only that a considerable time may elapse before the infection takes hold, but that it may come from wounds so slight as not to be remembered.

For this reason, all children should be protected against the disease by injections of tetanus toxoid, given at the age of about 18 months, or sooner, after their protective shots against diphtheria. Some doctors even advocate that a booster dose of toxoid should be used every two years.

If a wound of the sort which makes for tetanus occurs, another booster dose should be given at once. Even in those who have not been so protected, the disease can be ward off by an immediate injection of tetanus antitoxin.

Treatment of Tetanus

Once the disease develops, patients are kept in a darkened room under the influence of sedatives, to reduce nervous irritation and convulsions. Tetanus antitoxin is started at once by injection into a vein or a muscle. The amount given depends on the severity of the symptoms. Penicillin gives a fine weapon against the lung infection which sometimes develops in this disorder. Sometimes the tetanus antitoxin is administered by injection into a vein or into the spinal canal. Many do not believe that either of these methods should be employed.

The reason is, that sometimes injection into a vein may produce a severe reaction, while the use of the antitoxin by injection into the spinal canal produces an inflammation over the lining membrane of the brain and spinal cord and this may add to the patient's discomfort and decrease his chances of recovery.

ORCHIDS for Mother

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
"GAIL, I SIMPLY won't have it, do you hear?" Lissa said sharply. "You are coming back to New York with Martin and me and you're going to be suitably launched on the sort of social career I've always wanted you to have."

"No, Mother," said Gail, and the very fact that she said "Mother" instead of "Lissa" was significant. "I've found a place I like in the world and the kind of career I want."

Lissa whirled on Charles with a scented whisper of taffeta, and said hotly, "This is your work. You've taught her a lot of nonsense about the dignity of labor and such foolishness. I should have known better than to let her come here."

"Lissa!" said Martin, and though his tone was quiet, there was something in it that drew her around to look at him in complete astonishment. "Gail is not a child any longer. She's old enough to know her own mind."

"She's barely eighteen!" "Sorry, Lissa—let's have the truth, shall we? I'm almost 20," said Gail.

"We'd be happy to have you with us, Gail," said Martin with complete sincerity. "I confess I got quite a kick out of the prospect of having not only a beautiful wife but a charming daughter in my erstwhile bachelor home, and I'd be delighted if you could see it that way. But it's your life, and no one else has the right to try to live it for you."

Gail studied him for a moment and then she said impulsively, "I think I like you very much!"

"I'm honored deeply," said Martin, and obviously meant it.

Lissa stared from one to the other, her lovely face flushing with the unbecoming color of anger.

"Martin, are you encouraging her in this utterly idiotic behavior?" she demanded, as though she could not believe such a thing.

"I'm encouraging her to do whatever will make her happy," said Martin gently. "No one could do her a greater service."

"But it's all such utter nonsense!" raged Lissa. "After all that she's been through, I wanted her to be able to return a lot of snubs she and I used to have to take. I wanted her to get her own back from some of the superior people we've visited." Her voice died beneath the look in Martin's eyes. For a moment she looked almost frightened.

Martin said quietly, "Now that Gail is here and safe, you'd best get some rest, my dear. Come along. I'm sure Gail has a lot to discuss with her father and Mrs. Prentice. Good night, all."

He put his arm about Lissa and drew her up the stairs, his arm loosely about her as she went willingly, tightening a little when she slowed or showed any desire to stop or turn back.

When the door had closed behind them, Gail turned to Charles and Kate and said hurriedly, abashed, "You mustn't judge her too severely. After all, she's beautiful and sweet. Everybody sort of pampers her."

There was a hint of amusement in Charles' eyes.

"You don't have to explain Lissa to me, chick. I knew her long before you were born," he said gently.

Kate said comfortingly, "We're so glad you've come back, Gail. Did you stop for supper along the way? If not, you must all be starved. I've some sandwiches and a salad waiting."

"I'm famished!" Norah said cheerfully. "Right this minute, I can't remember whether we've had anything since six this morning—or was it yesterday?"

She and Kate went toward the kitchen and Charles and Gail looked at each other. Charles held out his arms and Gail ran into them and for a moment they held each other close.

"I've missed you, chick," said Charles huskily.

"I'm sorry I worried you, Father."

"You did what you felt you had to do, chick," said Charles. "Shall we leave it at that? And find out more about the sandwiches and the salad?"

"I love you!" she told him impulsively, and stood on tiptoes to kiss his cheek.

They went arm in arm into the kitchen, where Paul, Greg and Norah already sat at the kitchen table, hungrily attacking the food Kate placed before them.

Paul rose as Gail came in, held her chair for her, and beamed down at her cheerfully.

"I don't know when I've had so much fun," he said happily. "This is—well, I think places like this were what we fellows were fighting for, now that I come to think about it. Of course, I'd never seen one until day before yesterday. I suppose I thought I was fighting for home—a cold-water flat on the East Side, that changed every month or so, usually for something a little worse—"

He broke off, helped himself to another sandwich, and said casually, "Sorry—skip it."

Charles looked at him curiously, a gentle expression in his eyes, and made some remark. The chatter became casual and friendly. They were all tired, but relaxed and happy in the knowledge that Gail was here again. And Gail, looking about the little group with the sting of tears in her eyes, swallowed a lump in her throat.

Here they were, the people she loved best in all the world: her father; the woman who seemed more her mother than Lissa ever could; the girl she would have chosen for a sister if she had had a choice—and Greg. Her heart stumbled over Greg, and she turned her eyes sharply away from him.

He had not looked at her after that one glance when she had come into the room with Charles' arm about her. He had eaten very little, crumpling his sandwich, drinking half a glass of milk. As soon as he decently could, he stood up, pretended a yawn, and said casually, "Well, I think I'll turn in. If you don't mind bunking with me, Paul, you can come up whenever you're ready."

Norah rose, too, and stretched her arms in a luxurious yawn and said, "I think that's an excellent idea, Gail, you're in with me to-night, since Mr. and Mrs. Kincaid have your old room. Leave the dishes, Kate, and I'll do 'em in the morning. We're all dead for sleep."

At the foot of the stairs Gail kissed Charles good night and turned impulsively to Kate and hugged her hard and kissed her, too.

"Sorry I bothered you all. I won't again, I promise," she said remorsefully, and followed Norah up the stairs.

Norah's big square room, with the enormous old-fashioned bed, its feather mattress puffing beneath an immaculate white cotton spread—Gail had helped with the laundry here and grimaced a little at the memory of what a task it was to iron those spreads so smoothly—she opened her overnight bag, took out her nightgown, robe, slippers and toothbrush, as Norah yawned herself out of her clothes and into a cotton nightdress.

"Norah," said Gail uncertainly, "I don't want to pry, but what you told me before we left—about—"

"My husband?" said Norah gently.

"Isn't there any hope at all?" asked Gail.

Norah's face set and whitened. There was bitterness and pain in her eyes, but after a moment she answered quietly enough.

"They hate to admit that there's no hope, in such hospitals," she said slowly. "The doctors are wonderful and the equipment and the training—there's nothing left out. They are doing everything humanly possible; there is the barest possible chance. But I've hoped for so long, and counted on it so surely that I've got to the point where it's easier just to admit that it is hopeless. Physically, he's in good shape. They say that is good, that it is only the mind that needs doctoring. But Gail, the mind is—all! I mean the mind is Bill. Without it he is a stranger to me as I am to him."

TOP SOMETIMES BETTER

YOU hear fairly experienced players say they would rather lead the fourth-best of their partner's suit than the top of it, when against a trump contract, if they have four or more cards. They qualify that sometimes by saying that applies only when their partner is a good card-reader and can make deductions regarding the declarer's hand from such a number-counting lead. They should qualify it still further. Usually, if they have already indicated length by supporting their partner's bid of the suit, their highest card of it is more informative because that tells him something he doesn't know.

South required help to make that, but he got it—and how. It came on the first trick, when West led his fourth-best spade 3. The 8 was played from dummy and East had a tough guess. He did not dare play his 10 or 9, since South might have the J, so came in with the K. He simplified one of South's problems then by returning the club 10 to limit cross-ruffing. The J, Q and K on that set up the 9 and eliminated any trump losers. South led to the club 9, then the heart 10 and sent it through, followed by the 4 to the J. The club A cleared trumps.

Now watch. The heart A was scored, the diamond 7 led to the J and A to drop the K, and the diamond 3 to the 10 put East in with the Q. East obviously disliked a diamond return, so laid down the spade A, which South ruffed, setting up the Q. On the diamond 9 the heart Q was discarded. The diamond 6 was ruffed and the spade Q got the final trick.

West could have simplified East's problems by leading his top spade, the J, to the first trick, which he should have done for two reasons. First, he had already shown his length, and, second, North was marked with most of his side's strength by his double, and therefore was more likely than South to have a spade honor through which West could lead.

Today's Horoscope
You are vigorous and energetic, love the out-of-doors and enjoy any athletic sport. You have perseverance, far-sightedness, self-confidence, and are meticulous in detail. You assume responsibility with ease and assurance, and are generally successful. Your love is deep and strong. Your day is good in connection with investments, loved ones, romance, plans, buying and where old matters and the past are concerned. Your next year is indicative of financial gain, sometimes in novel or secret ways, also much domestic felicity. Employers and authority generally are helpful, promotion being envisaged. Forge ahead! The child born today will also be lucky in diverse ways, and will never want for a friend. Health and fortunes are well signified.

Hints on Etiquette
The formal rule of etiquette says that a hostess need wait only 20 minutes for a tardy dinner guest before beginning the meal without him.

Horoscope for Sunday
You are an impulsive person, changeable, quick-tempered, but you have, nevertheless, a strong character, forceful and compelling. You love nature, especially water sports. You are fortunate in having many dear friends, and will have a very pleasant home life. The vibrations today are doubtful except for things that are carefully planned. Next year you will derive much happiness through influential elders, particularly women, but you should be on the watch against disputation through hasty speech or correspondence. Courtship, marriage and domestic affairs are well signified. Many fine characteristics will be shown by the child who is born on this date. Such a child will be refined, humane, just, sincere, thoughtful, persevering and imbued with lofty ideals and high aspirations. Happiness above the average is also portended.

County Residents Urged To Find Firebug, Prevent Blazes

MAYOR URGES COOPERATION IN SPECIAL WEEK

Fire Prevention Program Begins Sunday; Arsonist Hunt Continues

With the police hunt for Pickaway county's pyromaniac spurred by the mysterious blaze which late Wednesday night swept the five-story frame garage at the rear of the residence of Harry E. Weill, 129 East High street and attempt to burn a barn, public officials joined Saturday in urging wide observance of Fire Prevention Week which will start Sunday.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise and Police Chief William F. McCrady appealed to all citizens to not only take all possible precautions to prevent fires but also to cooperate in every way in the attempt to capture the "firebug" who during the past 14 months has set fire to several barns and garages.

OFFICIALS said an attempt to set fire to the Blue Ribbon dairy barn in an alley between East Franklin and East Mound streets near Clinton street, failed because a blaze in hay in the mow went out after burning a spot about as large as a washtub. This incendiary attempt is believed to have been made Wednesday night—the night of the Weill garage blaze.

Chief Wise said Friday he had reported the Weill fire and the attempt to set fire to the Blue Ribbon dairy barn of the state fire marshal's office at Columbus.

MAYOR Ben H. Gordon issued an official proclamation calling upon Circleville residents to take part in the nation-wide observance of Fire Prevention Week. The mayor cited that President Truman has proclaimed the week of Oct. 5-11 as Fire Prevention Week throughout the United States.

There were 1,700,000 fires during 1946, Mayor Gordon pointed out, with resultant property losses reaching the tremendous total of $60 million dollars.

In his proclamation the mayor asked the fire and police departments as well as schools and all municipal employees to assist in the campaign to cut down fires in Circleville.

CHIEF WISE reiterated his appeal to citizens throughout the city and county to eliminate fire hazards. He said that rubbish fires cause considerable damage that if residents will remove rubbish from cellars, attics and closets the losses would decrease and many fires will be prevented.

Fire Prevention Week was heartily approved by J. Wray Henry, president of the Kiwanis club.

Love In Their Eyes

SWASHBUCKLING Douglas Fairbanks Jr., looks lovingly at beautiful Ruth Warrick in this romantic moment from "The Corsican Brothers," just one of the many interesting scenes that Fairbanks portrays in the twin brother role. Completing the double feature program is Jon Hall and Victor McLaglen in "South Of Pago Pago," an exciting fast moving feature of slashing combat, blazing guns and savage love. The greatest of all south sea adventure pictures comes to the Cliftona theatre Sunday and Monday.

'DEAD' MAN ON HIGHWAY JAILED TO SOBER UP

At 3 a. m. Saturday the telephone jangled in the Pickaway county jail office in Circleville. Deputy Vern L. Pontious answered. Deputy Pontious speeded to the scene in an auto and on the way picked up Crissinger. Sure enough, the man was lying in the road—but he was intoxicated and not dead. He was removed to the county jail. Subsequently the "dead" man gave his name as Charles Turner, 50, roofer, Route 1, Circleville. He will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland on an intoxication charge.

THESE DAYS

There are those who fail to realize that the yardstick of freedom is the differences among a people. They seek to suppress differences. They desire unity, oneness, a marshalling of all forces in a single direction. That is totalitarianism and means an end to liberty.

For liberty means that one individual, one person should do what he chooses; shall speak what he desires; shall believe according to his concepts and shall take positions according to his will—and that he shall personally take whatever consequences come from his choice. Liberty of the press does not relate to the conduct of one newspaper or one writer; it does relate to non-interference by government with the vehicles of expression. It would be as wrong to suppress the "Daily Worker" as the "Wall Street Journal." It would be as much a violation of liberty to shut up a Communist as to shut up a Republican or a Democrat, or for that matter, a Fascist. Liberty risks differences; Liberty risks freedom of expression. Liberty is unafraid. That is why the American press is so important to our people and to a dark and frightened world.
